New Beer Arrives On Queen's Wedding Day

Today, Friday, April 7, 1933 is a Red Letter day in the U. S. Legal 3.2 Beer arrives today. Madam Queen, who has made many trips to the altar, meets the winsome Guindell for another matrimonial trip, much to the sorrow of Andrew H. Brown, her disappointed lover.

How long will 3.2 beer last may be as hard to answer as to how long the Madam and Guindell can keep their free-wheeling chariot in the road.

The wets have cautioned about hilarious celebrations in recognition of beer's return. They do not want to face public clamor at the beginning of the new era. Madam Queen must be as mindful for she has taken on the "efficiency expert" with the big law firm of "Ferdinand, Ferdinand and Ferdinand" behind him.

The dries thought they had divorced King Alcohol from his subjects, but Andy Brown was as certain he had the "grass widow" in his grasp. Both have been disappointed but singularly the dries have not given up and Andy "hopes against hope."

Not all of the new modeled refreshment places will be able to take care of their intended customers the first day, owing to red tape and politics in getting the license. Dealers are having more trouble in getting the amber fluid in big quantities owing to brewery shortage.

The dries say trouble is ahead for the new brew. Andy is certain the Madam is not lost for good and at some other time may walk the isle once more.

COLLEGE TEAM IN DEBATE CONTEST

The local College Team will meet Wilmington College team in debate next Tuesday night.

This will be the only home debate of the year and will be held in the opera house at 8 o'clock, April 11.

The local team will debate Wilmington upholding the negative on: "Resolved, that all banking functions should be regulated by the Federal Government, with deposits guaranteed."

Those who heard the two teams here last year know Wilmington is a foe worthy of our steel, and if further evidence is needed it is found in the showing of our visitors at the debate tourney at Manchester College in February.

A nominal charge of ten cents will be made to pay the expense of judging and the use of opera house.

The Oregon plan will be used and you will have opportunity to hear a discussion of this timely question by young men and women who have given the matter much thought.

He pleaded for support of the temperance cause, asserting the return of beer is a menace to the constitution of the United States and endangers every institution of the country.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE VETERAN'S CUT

President Roosevelt evidently was put to the test when he issued the executive order calling for certain reductions in the payment of veterans. However he exercised the same power in the reduction of salaries of government employees. Probably no one would hesitate to enforce such an order were it not absolutely necessary. The financial condition of the nation would no longer permit such payments. That disappointment will be found among veterans there is no question but from what we can learn the organization is taking the reduction in a patriotic spirit. We are sure when conditions right themselves those who were called into service will be rewarded by a more liberal allowance than at present.

The President seems determined to balance the budget and this is what the nation wants. He is preparing to abolish other government bodies and commissions that have drawn heavy on the nation's income and given very little if anything in return.

The present situation is one in which the President has had no official responsibility in the past. The million upon million deficit was piled up by the past administration. There was no such thing as economy and there had been but one effort in the past four years to balance the budget. This was last June but by that time government income had dropped so low there was no chance of balancing the budget. The then President Hoover advocated a reduction in the pay of veterans but the nation did not take him seriously because he made no proposals as to how other reductions were to be made. The public was aware that millions of dollars of public money was being poured into the laps of Wall Street banks by the way of fat contracts to corporations owned or directed by Morgan.

The post office department had one of the largest deficits of any branch of the government. And this too in the face of increased postage. That such a deficit would mount there can be no denial when you hear of the kind of contracts the railroads and steamship companies, Morgan controlled, received for hauling the mail, the figures including the subsidy. The former administration was just as generous in loaning the steamship companies funds to build new vessels. Here is but one of numerous loans and the rate of interest: "Dollar Steamship Co., $5,287,500 at one-fourth per cent interest; another loan of $5,287,000 at one per cent and smaller amounts at rates ranging up to 3 1/2 per cent. This is the company young Roosevelt, a son of the late Theodore, heads. Young Roosevelt on one or more occasions took the "radio" to appeal to the public in support for a cut in veterans' pay during the Hoover campaign. He had reason to be alarmed as to the future of the country. Cutting the veteran's pay would leave the Morgan interests in position to gobble up more government money.

It is interesting to know something of the kind of contracts the post office department approved. In 1931 the Grace Steamship Co. was paid $238,500 for carrying mail which, on a pound basis, would have cost the department only $458.

Lykes Bros. Steamship Co. was paid $317,916 for hauling mail that would have cost by the pound, $194. Pacific Argentine Brazil Line, $286,393 for carrying $141.28 worth of mail at the pound rate. The Roosevelt-Vincent Astor company was evidently the favorite for Uncle Sam's postal department paid them a total of $3,728,304 covering the years 1931 and 1932.

These figures only show how one department under the past administration was operated. It is said other departments were about the same considering the amount of money available. Contracts were let for new post office buildings by the hundred and no one knows where the money is to come from to pay the bills. All this heaped the Hoover deficit into the billions. To get back within the nation's income readjustments are necessary and probably larger cuts will have to be made in the government payroll. The veterans can readily see that if some action was not taken for reductions the government would crumble. Most everyone regrets that the veterans must take a cut in their pay but when there is no funds to pay with and the revenue of the government greatly reduced, all departments must take their share of the cuts. Had Mr. Hoover been re-elected this cut would have come the same and if we read the signs right it would have been a deeper cut than what President Roosevelt has ordered.

TUESDAY A BLACK-LETTER DAY FOR U. S.

When the Airship Akron became entangled in a storm over the Atlantic ocean early Tuesday morning and crashed to the sea, taking 73 lives of crew and government passengers, the first thought of the average citizen was: "Does it pay to invest five or six million dollars in developing such a craft. The experience of this country has been anything but pleasant in regard to airship construction of the dirigible type. This is the third major loss to the country. Even a small blimp with three aboard while searching for bodies crashed taking the lives of its crew the same day.

Uncle Sam has one more major aircraft now under construction, the Macon, which was christened only a few weeks ago. We do not believe the nation expects the administration to consider other big aircraft at this time. Financial conditions do not warrant such expenditures while twelve or more million people walk the streets in search of labor. The aircraft interests will demand that another ship be built to take the place of the Akron—but someone should say no, not as long as men and women are in the American bread line.

RULES LACKING ON NEW BEER SALES

At this writing Ohio has no state liquor commission to issue the proper licenses. The politicians have been having some trouble picking a complete board, four Democrats and three Republicans, all to be named by Governor White. Picking out men for this board from a political standpoint so that the beer seller will be under obligation to the party in power is no easy matter. Another problem bothering local officials is whether a city tax can be charged. Some say not for the reason the beer is to carry a tax collected by the state and divided with the municipalities where licenses are to be used. All village and city ordinances on the liquor question are now dead as a result of the change in the state law. The beer law is effective today, Friday, but only the larger cities will likely have much of a supply on hand.

The man that keeps hammering away rarely ever runs across the word—impossible.

The farm is not the only place where you find over production. Take a look at the hundreds of bills introduced and offered in the state legislatures.

Saturday is the national "beer" day but the question that should concern the customers is whether the brewers are to be ready for "beer" day. It is claimed the supply is so limited many may be compelled to remain on the water-wagon or be content with homebrew.

The fellow that says nothing or does nothing seldom has an enemy. Its the other kind the nation needs, leaders of action and progressive in thought. The "do nothing" variety are always behind the procession, never up in front.

In Germany the Nazis have had their parades and their boycotts, Hitler's followers known as the brown shirt boys. This country once had just such an organization, the "white-hooded boys" known best as Kluxers. But that was back in the days when dollar bills grew on rose bushes. Germany will in time outgrow the Nazis.

TALES OF THE CHIEFS

By
 Editha L.
 Watson

POCAHONTAS AND MILLY

Her real name was Matoaka, and she was the daughter of Wahunsenaw, chief of the Powhatan confederacy. She was a beautiful child, and her playfulness earned her a nickname from the father: Pocahontas (she is playful).

The adventures of Capt. John Smith—his perils among the hostile Indians, his capture, the sentence to death, and his rescue by the maiden scarcely in her teens, are told in song and story. But that is only the beginning of the narrative of Pocahontas. John Smith returned to England in 1609. The promises of the English were not fulfilled, and the Indians were kept unhappily busy by the exactions of the white people.

There was intrigue among the Indians also. Lured by the false stories of a "treacherous" chief, Pocahontas went aboard the ship of Captain Argall, in the Potomac river. She was held on board while the boat sailed away from land, and for some time she was kept a prisoner and ransom was asked for her. "Pocahontas," as her father was known, had become openly hostile when his favorite daughter was thus kidnapped. He agreed to a kind of peace, however, to effect her return, but was ready for trouble—a dangerous neighbor for the whites.

But Pocahontas had not spent all her time in English hands bewailing her fate. One of the Englishmen had found favor in her eyes, and she saw that her affection was returned. She accepted Christianity, partly, perhaps, because of this personable gentleman, and was baptized as the "Lady Rebecca." Her savagery thus transmuted, John Rolfe no longer delayed, and in April, 1613, the two were married.

This alliance pleased Powhatan. The old chief (he was sixty when he first met the white men) had great ambitions for his beloved daughter. Three years after the wedding, the Rolfe and several of the Powhatan Indians set sail for England. Pocahontas' story had preceded her, and since her father was a powerful ruler, the daughter was everywhere a triumph; her portrait was painted; people crowded around her in admiration, and her romantic story was on every tongue.

Happy over her reception, yet eager to return to her own people, Pocahontas prepared for the trip back to America. She was aboard the ship, when at Gravesend, when an unforeseen calamity occurred. Smallpox, an enemy which rarely spared Indian victims, attacked her. Everything possible was done in the hope of saving the young "princess," but nothing availed. She was buried in the churchyard at Gravesend, when an unforeseen calamity occurred. Smallpox, an enemy which rarely spared Indian victims, attacked her. Everything possible was done in the hope of saving the young "princess," but nothing availed. She was buried in the churchyard at Gravesend, when an unforeseen calamity occurred.

While Pocahontas is perhaps the most romantically famous Indian girl in history, there have been other rescues by other Indian maidens. That of McKimmon by the Seminole Milly is also well-known, and has a happier ending.

In December of 1817, McKimmon, an American, was captured by the Indians and taken to Mikasuki, Hills Hadjo's town. This famous chief had been on the British side in the War of 1812, and was still a foe to the Americans. He ordered the captive to be burned to death like any other enemy.

The American, his head shaved, was bound to a stake, and wood was piled around him, ready for the "burnt-offering." Then began a hideous dance. The Seminoles circled round and round their captive, uttering cries of contempt, and of joy at his capture.

We are not told how the American stood the ordeal. However, our national pride in our countrymen, as well as Milly's intercession, speak well for him, for if he had begged for mercy, no doubt the Seminole maiden would have steered her heart against him.

Just as the fatal fire approached the wood, the young and lovely daughter of Hills Hadjo rushed to her father. At his feet, she begged for the life of the captive, but the chief was stern and denied her request. Finally she threatened to die with him unless he was liberated. No until he was convinced that his daughter meant what she said, did the chief order the captive unbound. Although McKimmon's life was safe, he was not free, however. The Seminoles held him as a prisoner until he was bought by some Spaniards for seven and a half gallons of rum, and these "owners" released him.

Shortly after these events, the chief was captured by Americans and hanged. His wife and daughters, among whom was Milly, surrendered. The Americans paid marked attention to the brave and beautiful young Indian girl, and McKimmon offered to marry her. After a long courtship, in which McKimmon finally persuaded her that he had not made the offer from gratitude, but from love, they were married, and so, as the fairy-tales say, they lived happily ever after.

 Probate Judge of said County.

The farm mortgage relief proposal is now before congress for consideration. Various state legislatures have been wrestling with such a plan but the complications are many and how to treat all interests fairly is troubling the best of minds. A survey shows that 45.2 per cent of all farms in New York are under mortgage now and as strange as it may seem this percentage is the same as it was back in 1900. The lowest percentage was 33.7 in 1925. State legislatures are endeavoring to make it possible to withhold foreclosure proceedings. However the requirement for this calls for prompt payment of interest, taxes, insurance, and reasonable upkeep of the property. C. B. Jennett, vice president of the First Trust Joint Stock Land Bank in Chicago, in a statement presents a different view. He says: "It is time to think of the investor as well as the farmer. The attitude of mortgage holders who put the farmers on the defensive by forcing the issue now is lamentable." Jennett does not favor moratorium because those able to pay will also halt and the entire economic structure collapses. This ruins markets and the farmer out of debt is soon pulled down. The lesson to the coming generation is clearly shown whether the newcomers will profit is a question. It must be admitted that in excess of credit is not always the best asset, depending on how judicious it is used. Many of the loans made in recent years were like some marriages on record, repentance followed at a more leisure hour. Probably in the future borrowers will be compelled to have say fifty per cent of the purchase price of a farm or home before the loan is made.

President Roosevelt has outlined a plan whereby congress is asked to put into law more protection to the investing public. Thousands and thousands of citizens the past four years under "the bigger the better rule" were robbed by the mass of securities of local companies that were worthless then and are proven so now. Then we had the sale of millions of foreign bonds that are worthless. All of these investors, as innocent as they were as to what they were buying, now find themselves "broke." They had been given the "Geiger-Jones" degree. Held up by the heels and heels to the last cent if necessary. The nation does not have to be begged to support such a law. We hear no complaint in this country about such a law. Greene county has been a fertile field for the sale of questionable stocks. People have given at least one such man political support. President Roosevelt might call in the Seventh District Congressman who should know something about what should or should not be in such a law.

As an aftermath of all our banking difficulties it appears that the next big drive is to bring all of the 12,000 state and national banks into the Federal Reserve system. There are many state and national banks in the system, more of the latter than the former. The people have learned that a bank does not have to have a million dollar capital to be safe. They have also discovered that a bank statement was for something more than exhibiting the amount of deposits on hand.

While on the banking question we are watching to see how far Congress goes with the investigation of the "House of Morgan." It is said the "Merchants in Money" as they have styled themselves in the past have by directors direct or indirect control in 918 banks, railroads, steamship lines, insurance companies, chain stores, as well as hundreds of manufacturing concerns. The same house has had control of stock exchanges, grain and live stock markets. In fact it has been the seat of the government the past four years. Call money in the market for broker's loans was around two percent but Uncle Sam borrowed from the "House" at 3 1/4. It has also been intimated that copies of all important government papers have been turned over to the seat of government on Wall Street. Cabinet members conversed daily with New York for advice. Fat government contracts went to firms controlled by the "House" and even some Senators are now listed as being welcome guests in the "House of Morgan." It is going to be by the way to watch this proposed investigation and how congress votes on it. The "New Deal" will begin or end with this investigation.

To those who follow events it is amusing how some things turn out. It was only a comparatively few years ago that a well known state politician was out to enforce prohibition. This was in the days when the alley boys had to concentrate on extract of lemon for a thrill, the corn-cob distiller had not yet taken up the art of distilling and the home brew was unknown in the family kitchen. Back in the days we refer to, many grocers probably sold one or two many bottles of the extract and this was grounds for the supposed prohibition enforcement snooters to get in their work. Some merely walked up and paid their fines, some took another route that made things interesting for the enforcer, who had a family to support. One case pointed out to the writer several years ago was that of a grocer that could settle for $50 out of court and the matter would be forgotten but the grocer was a bigger man than that. He openly stated that he might have to pay a fine but he would not pay a bribe. And he paid the fine. Now one of these lemon extract enforcers is to dish out permits to sell the new beer Friday. There is a good lesson in the story from the dry standpoint. Enforcement and the manner it has been handled has had more to do with turning public sentiment than anything else. The federal government never had but one honest conscientious enforcement head of that department, and he was Smalley Butler. He asked that he be given the power to pick his own enforcement officers. Two of the nation's dryest senators from the floor of the upper house spoke against giving away this power, which they contended belonged to the senate members. Smalley lost out and in time gave up his enforcement job and quit in disgust. His hands were tied by having to take wet inspectors recommended for appointment by so-called dry senators who had to have the wet vote to win at the polls. Another lesson the drys can find out of the past experiment as noble as we were once told it was.

The result of the Michigan prohibition repeal vote Monday may have been quite a surprise to the drys for the state was one of the first to join the movement for national prohibition. The wets claim around 80 of the one hundred delegates for the constitutional convention. The result in Wisconsin was no surprise. The state never did endorse prohibition, neither was prohibition ever enforced in that state. The nation is beer minded and it is not going to be stopped very easily. The hard liquor interests and the beer crowd may fall out in time for the former are not now in the picture. Stand by the platform is the slogan and politicians like to point with pride to the platform.

Ohio is not all set yet about how the beer business is to be managed. In as much as the beer bill was passed in the Ohio legislature by a large vote, we are glad the emergency clause was added to check a referendum. In our opinion the emergency racket is about the worst piece of court written legislation ever given any state. Now its a good club in the hands of the wets. If each tax act was subject to a referendum we would not be facing more taxes. The emergency clause may awaken drys to the fact such a thing should be impossible.

GUM-DIPPED CORDS
 The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, silvery unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer tire life.

TWO EXTRA GUM-DIPPED CORD PLIES UNDER THE TREAD
 This is a patented construction, and the two extra Gum-Dipped cord plies are so placed that you get 50% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and tests show 20% greater protection against punctures and blowouts. It sets a new standard for tire performance on high speed cars.

NON-SKID TREAD
 Tough, live rubber specially compounded for long, slow wear. Scientifically designed non-skid gives greater traction and safe, quiet performance.

FLOWER GIRL

By CHERIE NICOLAS

This dainty little frock is an unusually pretty style for the flower girl who expects to play an important role in a spring wedding. It can easily be made at home at little expense of organdy, silk mesquite, chiffon or flat crepe. The arrangement of the pleating is very effective and quite along entirely new lines. In Paris everything that can be finely knife-pleated is pleated, in the styling of fashions for grown-ups as well as for children.

Vivid Crepes

Crepes are the favorite evening fabric of the moment. Splashing the palette of black, brown, red and white, which has been seen all winter, are new and vivid tones such as cyclamen mauve, cyclamen pink, canary yellow and water green.

Xenia Editor Evidently Admires College Quartette

Editor Harry Rice, Xenia Herald, former president of the Xenia Kiwanis Club, has the following to say of the Cedarville College Girl's Quartette:

"That's a talented co-ed quartet from Cedarville College. The group scored heavily in presenting a program before the Kiwanis club here. They had already gained a reputation by broadcasts from Columbus."

"There is one member in particular of the quartet that sings like a lark and with the ease, the freedom and even the gusto of a grand opera favorite."

"She does not keep her voice locked up in her throat. On a first hearing one might get the erroneous impression she is a professional so much talent and artistry she shows. She not only sings, but plays the violin and the piano. On the latter she marched through the mazes of a Chopin composition. There's a girl that ought to be heard from, Miss Eleanor Bull."

"The other members of the quartet are: Maxine Bennett, second soprano, Union City, Ind.; Nina Stevenson, Cedarville, first alto; Florence McLaughlin, Salem, Ill., second alto."

"Then the reader, Miss Glenna Baire, of Carlisle, O., shows understanding and versatility. Her many impersonations were unusually well done."

"The quartet is under the tutelage and direction of Mrs. Margaret Work, of the College. Mrs. Work is a piano virtuoso of no mean talent."

NEWEST PRINTS

By CHERIE NICOLAS

A white outlined patterning on a dark ground, as here pictured, is the latest thing for daytime prints. It is a question whether white on black or white on navy is in the lead. Anyway, you can't help being attracted by these handsome prints. The huge butterfly bow is of white satin, and there is a facing of the matching satin at the top of the elbow-to-waist puff which distinguishes the sleeve.

STYLE NOTES

High crowns is latest millinery news.

Flair organdy for the blouse makes appeal.

Mauve check flannel is popular for the spring suit.

Be crisp, says fashion, in organdy or starched lace.

Quantities of fine knife pleating is latest style message.

For a typically spring color there's nothing excels the now-popular Eleanor blue.

Milliners display ensembles of handbags, scarves, ruffles, boutonnieres, belts and collars with hats.

Temperance Notes

Sponsored by Cedarville W. C. T. U.

If our wet friends will show a better plan than we now have for handling this problem, I am ready to go along with them. Further, I will promise that if the wets win this fight and set up a plan of "liquor control," I will obey their law, I will not violate it nor try to get others to violate it and then point to these violations as my main argument for the repeal of their law.

We have no delusions regarding making men moral by law. It can't be done. But, society has a right to protect itself against a traffic of which not a single good thing can be said, which is inherently parasitic and lawless, and which strikes at the very foundation of human society—the home.

Remember that the eighteenth amendment does not tell anyone what he shall or shall not eat or drink. There is not a word in it about "using brute force" to "save drunkards against their will." All that it prohibits is the traffic in beverage alcohol, a traffic that if the present program carries will prove the most profitable business in America for the few that are to control it.

To put up a logical defense of liquor and the crowd that sponsors it is practically impossible. Abraham Lincoln declared 80 years ago, "Liquor has many defenders, but no defense."

C. E. BRATTEN

Mahatma Gandhi said in his weekly Young India, "If I were appointed dictator for one hour over all India, the first thing I would do would be to close without compensation all liquor shops and destroy all toddy palms from which liquor is locally extracted."

Hugh F. Fox, secretary of the U. S. Brewers' Association, has said: "I am firmly convinced that within five years after the brewing business is re-established, our sales will reach 160,000,000 barrels a year." He hopes to have plenty of beer within reach of every family, but what effect will this much beer have on automobile, truck and airplane drivers?

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures Corporation, urges the movie business to fight the return of the saloon as it would "fight a pestilence." He says that "a large part of the money which will go to saloons for beer, will come out of the movie business," if the saloon comes back. It is time for the movies to cut out their jokes and ridicule of prohibition.

The late Senator Walsh was not a dry but he believed in the sacredness of the law. He had already announced that the Federal prosecution of dry law violators would proceed unabated while it was still a law and its enforcement under his control as Attorney General. He also opposed the view that Congress has authority to set up machinery for state conventions to consider the submission of the repeal resolution.

An Omaha lawyer recently wagered a friend that he could secure 300 signatures to a petition, favoring the candidacy for mayor of that city, of any person whom he would mention. His friend immediately named Giuseppe Zangara, the attempted assassin of President elect Roosevelt. The 300 names were quickly secured, most of them being professional men who signed the petition without even looking at it. Until we have a more thoughtful citizenship, there is little hope for better government.

A fight to forestall liquor advertisements was launched at the annual union preachers' meeting held under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League of New York State. Mr. Fred Victor, president of the State League, said, "the decent citizenship of this nation ought to realize before it is too late that there is a possibility of having their homes invaded and their children fooled by brewery sponsored programs over the radio." The league is seeking legislation in this legislature which will prohibit all liquor advertising in newspapers, magazines, on billboards or by radio. —Christian Century.

The International News Service recently told of a great disaster which happened in London 118 years ago. A huge brewery vat, containing 3,500 barrels of strong beer, burst. In the deluge which resulted eight persons drowned, and many injured, the immediate district was submerged, and buildings collapsed. In the orgy of drunkenness which followed, twelve people died of suffocation. That was only a circumstance to what will happen in this country if Congress opens the spigots of our brewery vats and our distilleries. Our highways crowded with drunkenness will be the path of a flood beside which the London disaster was a trifling incident.

Choir Rehearsal, Saturday at 8 P. M. Annual Congregational Meeting. The annual congregational meeting of the United Presbyterian Church was held Wednesday evening. A bountiful covered dish dinner was served first in the dining room, after which the business session was held in the auditorium. Reports were given by every organization of the church, and in spite of old man depression, were encouraging.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year Chairman, James Stormont; Secretary, Mrs. Hervey Bailey; Treasurer, Frank Bird; Trustee for five year term, Lloyd Confarr. The session appointed the following officers for the coming year:

Supt. Sabbath School, J. E. Kyle; Assistants, Delmar Jobe and Meryle Stormont.

Secretary, Eleanor Cooley; Assistant, Rebecca Galloway; Literature Secretary, Emile Finney; Asst. Joe Waddle. Treasurer, James Anderson. Supt. of Intermediate Department, Mrs. Hervey Bailey. Assistant, Josephine Auld.

Supt. of Cradle Roll and Home Department, Miss Lulu Henderson. Miss Henderson to name her assistants. Church organist, Miss Lena Hastings. S. S. Organist, Miss Eleanor Bull; Asst. Martha Waddle. Chief Usher, O. A. Dobbins.

The pastor and family were completely surprised at the close of the dinner Wednesday evening, when Mrs. W. W. Galloway began to address them, and called their attention to a well laden table, bearing sufficient provision to keep the hunger wolf from the parsonage door for many weeks to come. In addition there were some other tokens of esteem, which are not to be eaten. It was difficult to find words to express our heart felt appreciation for this kind expression of good will thus manifested. The pastor almost wonders if the U. P. Church of Cedarville might be his field of service for another seven years.

CAPON PRODUCTION
INCREASES PROFITS

An Added Amount of Flesh
Makes Market Demand.

By L. F. Brumfield, Farm Agent, Yacklin
County, North Carolina—Widely
The capon retains the tender, juicy and sweet quality of flesh that was possessed in its younger life and finds a ready market when there is a scarcity of other market fowls.

The production of capons will add profits to any poultryman's annual income. The increased amount of flesh on the body, especially the breast, and the improved quality of the meat gives to the capon its high value and market demand. The percentage of edible meat on the capon will average 62 per cent as compared with about 50 per cent for the cockerels and 59 per cent for the fattened fowl. Properly fed, the capon uses a good part of the ration to make body growth and a large, strong frame is needed to support the increased amount of flesh which the bird puts on. The capon also has the ranging ability of the turkey.

The best method in producing capon is to select cockerels weighing about 1½ pounds at eight weeks of age. These are caponized in the late spring and early summer when broiler prices are low. The birds are then fed so as to develop body growth and are fattened to be sold when about ten months of age. When choosing cockerels for caponizing, get only those which show good vigor and vitality and have a tendency to produce large bones. An individual of this type will recover from the operation more quickly and with the least halting in growth.

The grain produced on the farm and free range supplemented with some vitamin protein and a mineral mixture may be used as feed. Rye, oats, rape, soybeans, peas, lespedeza, alfalfa and clover will furnish range pickings through the entire period of growth.

Trapnesting Turkeys Is Found to Be Good Plan

There is nothing new about trap-nesting turkeys, but there is a great deal of profit to be derived from heavy laying hens capable of producing highly fertile eggs of known hatchability.
Pedigreed breeders in a turkey flock are as important as pedigreed chickens, and the turkey specialist recognizes this to the same degree as does the hen egg producer.

Turkey hens, when left to their own resources, will lay enough eggs to make a setting, go broody and proceed to reproduce their kind; they may possess ability to lay and will transmit this ability through their sons to their granddaughters.

Trapnesting determines which turkey hens possess ability to lay. When this ability is found, the possessors of it should be mated to a male similarly endowed for transmission purposes.
This simple genetic practice will work wonders in improving any flock, but the wise turkey farmer will select breeders of large size and good health.

Lesson for April 9

JESUS REQUIRES CONFESSION
AND LOYALTY

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—And when he had called the people unto him with his disciples also, he said unto them, Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. Mark 8:34.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being True to Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Passing a Hard
Test.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Loyalty to Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—What Jesus Expects of His Followers.
The time had now come for Jesus to take account of his ministry. Having been rejected by the rulers he went into retirement with his disciples. The primary object in his teaching at this time was to prepare the disciples for the tragic hour of the cross which he knew was so near. His teaching centered in the great cardinal doctrines of the Christian faith. He instructed them, touching his atoning death, resurrection, and glorious coming again.
He knew that in the measure that they intelligently apprehended these things they would be able to pass through the ordeal before them.

1. Peter's Confession of Christ (vv.
27-30).
This confession was provoked by two questions of Jesus.

"Whom do men say that I am?"
(vv. 27, 28)? This question referred to the opinions of the people regarding Jesus. Some believed him to be John the Baptist; some Elijah, and some, one of the prophets. They all recognized him to be a teacher or prophet with more than human authority and power.

2. "Whom say ye that I am?" (vv.
29, 30)? Jesus persistently claimed to be the God-man, the very Son of God, incarnate. He wanted the disciples to know him personally as the Son of God.

11. Jesus Teaching Concerning the Cross (vv. 31-33).
He charged the disciples not to make public his Messiahship as that would precipitate a crisis.

1. What he taught (v. 31).
a. "The Son of man must suffer
many things." He suffered weariness, hunger, ridicule, contempt, and even misunderstanding and lack of appreciation on the part of his friends and disciples.

b. "Be rejected of the elders, chief priests, and scribes." These were the nation's official representatives, who should have received and recognized Christ and recommended his reception on the part of the nation.

c. "Be killed." Jesus now states with definiteness that he must die on the cross. The disciples had not yet come to know that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion of the cross.

d. "Rise again." Though this was utterly incomprehensible to the disciples, he showed them that this would be the glorious issue of his death.

2. How the disciples received his teaching (v. 32). So unwelcome was his teaching, touching the cross, that Peter, the spokesman of the disciples, rebuked him.

3. Jesus rebukes Peter (v. 33). He told Peter plainly that his attitude was due to his being under the influence of the devil.

111. Jesus Going to Jerusalem to Die
(Mark 10:32-34).
He went to Jerusalem with the consciousness of the awful tragedy before him, the treachery of Judas, the fiery persecutions of the scribes and Pharisees, the unjust judgment, the delivery to Pontius Pilate, the mocking and scourging, the crown of thorns, the nails and the spear—all were spread before him.

He had not only come to minister but to take a ransom for many.
The joyous outlook of the victory which was to be accomplished through the shedding of his blood led him forward (Heb. 12:2).

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (Mark
8:34).
The law of the Christian life is suffering. To follow Christ means to turn one's back upon the world and share his sufferings.

1. There must be denial of self (v.
34). There is a vast difference between self-denial and denial of self.
All people practice self-denial, but only Christians deny self.

2. The cross must be taken up
(v. 34). This means that suffering and shame will lie in the pathway of the one who is loyal to God (II Tim.
3:12).

3. Christ must be followed (v. 34).
The blessed issue of following Christ is a life of freedom here and now,
and eternal life hereafter.

Study Brings Light
I have never in my life begun to study one single part of divine truth without gaining some light about it, when I have been able really to give myself to prayer and meditation over it.—George Muller.

Washes Away Sins
The power of the Blood avails for the blackest and deepest sins, and no man is beyond the reach of God's mercy till the gates of hell have closed upon him.
